

Castellers — Catalan builders of human towers

Building of human towers (castells) is an old Catalan tradition. The tower that the castellers build with their bodies can reach up to ten floors and is made of people of different ages and genders climbing up the backs and shoulders of the others.

There are several types of towers according to their height or the number of “builders” per floor. The castell consists of three parts: the base (pinya), the trunk (tronc) and the upper part (pom de dalt).

LEGEND

colour fill	cut out	partial cut

FOLD

How many floors will your tower have?

